While teletherapy has been utilized and respected within the field of counseling, this workshop will examine clinical supervision of these services. This session will highlight challenges and barriers faced, while also identifying effective supervision strategies that can enhance the effectiveness of supervision and counseling for the substance use population. Attendees will be provided with strategies for success while also being educated about potential pitfalls that may accompany this modality.

Workshop Objectives:

This workshop will identify barriers and challenges faced by clinical supervisors who provide supervision of counselors working with the substance abuse population.

This workshop will review ethical implications for clients and counselors due to ineffective supervision

This workshop will introduce practical resources and strategies for clinical supervisors that can be used to ensure adequate supervision with consideration for this modality.
